The New Year Resolution You Didn't Know You Needed: Keeping Your Online Presence and Information Safe

As an NEISD community partner, Randolph-Brooks Federal Credit Union (RBFCU) is offering its expertise on fraud and online safety this school year.

In today's digital world, protecting your personal information online is more important than ever. With the rise in identity theft, phishing and data breaches, it's essential to understand how to safeguard both your personal data and that of your students.

Kick off the New Year with cybersafety at the forefront of your goals for this semester and implement these tips to help keep you and your classroom safe:

- Use strong, unique passwords or passphrases and consider using a password manager to help keep track of each one.
- Enable multifactor authentication on all of your school and personal devices and accounts.
- Be cautious of emails, texts and phone calls asking you to divulge personal information or to click on a link.
- Be mindful of what you share online and use privacy control settings when using social media.
- Share these tips with your students and encourage them to protect their personal data online, especially when it comes to social media and websites that collect personal information.

Watch RBFCU's webinar on Navigating Through Fraud in a Digital World (rbfcu.org/fraudwebinar) to hear more from an industry expert on how to spot scams and protect yourself from becoming a victim. To stay up to date with more fast fraud tips, find us on your favorite social media platform @rbfcu.
